Biography

Saifur Rahaman is an Assistant Professor (On Leave) of computer science & engineering at the International Islamic University Chittagong, and Ph.D. student in Computer Science at City University of Hong Kong and also a Teaching assistant in the Computer Science Department at City University of Hong Kong. He has published papers on expert systems and biomedical engineering. His current research interests include new techniques, tools, and methods to handle uncertainty for expert systems, biomedical engineering, clinical decision support systems, decision making, and risk analysis in prediction models.

Employment

Doctor of Philosophy (Student), PhD Computer Science
Department of Computer Science
City University of Hong Kong
1 Sep 2019 → present

Research outputs

A belief rule-based expert system to assess suspicion of acute coronary syndrome (ACS) under uncertainty
Scopus citations: 13